What? Yes! Held Up by a Washout and Eddie Foy's Nine Babies Get No Milk.

HERE'S A THRILLING TALE

Admirers Awaiting Aesthetes Commuting From New Rochelle Horrified, but Calmed by Orson Lowell.

The throng of the emotional and impressionable and therefore the æsthetic who flock to the Grand Central concourse each morning to get autographs from the passengers who detrain from the Art Special which leaves New Rochelle daily at 8:41 A. M. (ff. Stops only to take on artists; g*Discontinued on Sundays; **Stops only on signal from Richard Harding Davis and Gus Thomas' waited and waited and waited and waited and waited yesterday forenoon. Hour after hour had passed and the trainload of artists. writers and sculptors who daily commute in a plush hat, "would be living as of old in New Rochelle, and probably would have been on this very train—"

"A messenger boy interrupted by racing toward The Sun reporter with a telegram, written originally in the blackest Higgins's drawing ink, waterproof and signed Orson Lowell, the Illustrator."

The telegram ran.

Milk and water mixed again. Washout up the line. No milk trains at New Rochelle up to yet. Edwin Foy's nine babies suffering intensely. I am sending this here telegram collect. And I have the honor to be, sir, yours very sincerely, Orson Lowell, the Illustrator. The telegram had hardly been opened and paid for when up came another mes-senger, this time with a telegram dated Woodside:

The train has started but I fear we will be late as it is now almost 10 o'clock and the 'Art Special should have started at 8:41. When I get to town I will tell you of the New Rochelle and vicinity. Give me credit in THE SUN for sending these telegrams. am now rapidly getting in touch with you. ORSON LOWELL, the libstrator.

This telegram had been read and reread to the assembled autograph collec-tors, and thereby their fears had been calmed, when along came a message dated Pelham Manor, also collect:

We are quickly growing nearer to your city. Soon I shall be able to tell you all.

Orson Lowell, the Illustrator. The clamoring around the station-master's office ceased then. The resthetes had now gathered that for some unacreason the Art Special merely was delayed a few hours and not wrecked, and that the delay had been caused not because of a wreck but owing to some-thing which had to do with water, and thereby delayed the delivery of New Rochelle's morning milk. A new tele-gram explained further and was sent from the 125th street station, again collect.

I am so close to you now that I can almost reach out my hand and touch you. Gluck to you. Gluck is my abbreviation of "good" luck." But by combining the two words into "gluck" I skin the Western I nion out of one word, which is some saving for you. This also applies to the Postal or to any telegraph line which one cares to use

Orson Lowell, the Illustrator. Telephone 8417 Bryant. Ring McMahon'

And simultaneously the Art Special came to a stop several blocks north of the concourse, and after a time the passengers had walked down to the crowd of hero worshippers waiting at the consource gates. Gus Thomas of Clinton avenue, New Rochelle, yesterday unfortunately had selected the Art Special to come to town, and Gus was one of the first of the esthetic commuters that hove in sight. With him was Marc Klaw, or, to give the two New Rochellites the respective titles by which we members of Mecca Temple of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine sanw them, with Nawleh Thomas was beni Silden Klaw. The two came down—Beg pardon? Where did we get what? Oh! Why, the recent annual report of Mecca Temple tells all about it. As additional proof it may be remarked that Abe Erlanger is known in the Temple as Kastal, and De Wolf Hopper as Haroot. Guess that's bad little deteckatif work, what?

But up to yet nobody has been informed what this yarn is all about, at least so far as The Sun can learn. There is a general notion broadcast that (and this newspaper can give the Mecca names of Edgar and Archie Selwyn, Nat Wills, Raymond Hitchcock, George Beban, Choe Weber, and a lot more if it wanted to—and some day will)—a general notion broadcast that this brief item has to do with a washout up State which resulted in the non-delivery of milk yesterday in New Rochelle, and also the delay of trains, especially the Art Special. A mile up the platform the geniuses are detraining and working their way toward the daily autograph collectors. Let the flower autograph collectors. Let the flower of American art and literature tell the all eager to explain what this is all about—which so far isn't exactly clear: Dr. Benjamin E. Smith, editor of the Centurr Dictionary, who to-day sails for Porto Rico. No, the doctor is not smoking a silver tipped cigarette. As usual he is taking his temperature with a clinical thermometer. Dr. Smith, like the rest of the Art Special folks, is entirely out of milk.

WHITMAN TO APPEAL IN THE BRANDT CASE

E. Brandt wrote to United States Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota. It was in reflecting on a member of Mr. Schiff's family. Mr. Carmody was fully empowered to handle the Brandt case for the Governor. He so understood, and his course thereafter was based on the assumption that he alone was the Governor's adviser.

It shortly became apparent that the Attorney-General was going to recom-mend a pardon, and that Mr. Carmody and District Attorney Whitman were in absolute agreement that Brandt was "It has been stated in the public pressentenced illegally and also that it would that I acted under a misapprehension be almost impossible to get relief from the courts because of tangled questions of law. Therefore they held that it rested with the Governor to settle the whole business by granting a pardon. The agreement that sprang up between Mr. Carmody and Mr. Whitman as soon as they had opportunities to get acquainted caused surprise in Albany. When the Carnegie Trust Company investigation was put before the Governor by counsel for Charles H. Hyde, former Chamberlain, and the Governor was urged to take the investigation out of Mr. Whitman's hands and turn it over to Mr. Carmody, attempts were made at the same time to prejudice Mr. Carmody against Mr. Whitman. They were not successful, but it was thought then that there was some friction between them and that this might have a bearing on the Brandt proceedings. The contrary happened. Attorney-General and District Attorney went to work elbow

Pretty soon it was observed that the Governor was not rejecting suggestions from the other side and that he was not following Mr. Carmody's advice. Efforts were made to persuade the Governor that there was only one question before the Governor and that was whether Brandt was guilty of the crime to which he had pleaded. Mr. Dix apparently could not take that view of the case. Gradually the relations between him and Mr. Carmody became strained. The Attorney-General has a habit of plain speech and he was deeply stirred by the revelations estigation until an appeal is taken. In court case the District Attorney decided that . "The court has enunciated with great

The Governor supplemented his statement by the declaration:

"There is absolutely no change in my position. I stand like Gibraltar on this question."

The statement of the Governor said: "It has been stated in the public press yesterday in deciding and announcing that the decision of the Supreme Court in the habeas corpus case has for the time being completely tied up further pro-ceedings before Commissioner Hand. It has been stated that because the order in the habeas corpus proceeding has not yet actually been entered the conviction of Brandt has accordingly not yet been formally and legally set aside, and that the Governor accordingly is still authorized to exercise clemency.

"I have received a telegram from District Attorney Whitman to the above effect and I am informed that Justice Gerard announces that he has not yet handed down his decision, of which only a transcript has been made public, and that he will delay entering an order in the case to give me time to grant pardon to Brandt. "My decision as announced yesterday

These two questions are puzzling diplo-

Acting Secretary Wilson declined to say to-day whether Mr. Knox would include Colombia in his itinerary, as originally intended, although the Colombian Government has notified the State Department that it would be pleased to have Mr. Knox drop around.
